SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 10 .- The Liberals and Democrats here are wild with excitement over the work of the Baltimore Convention. Immediately upon re-ceipt of the news to-day a national salute was fired. In the evening, to the booming of canon, a display of fire-works, and the music of an excellent band, an immense crowd assembled on the State House Square, and was addressed by Senator Trumbull, the Hon. J. T. Stuart, Charles A. Keys, the Hon. Edward Rummel, and Wm. M. Springer of this city, and the Hon. R. P. Hanna of Fairfield and Edward Lynch of Lincoln. The meeting was impromptu and proved a great success, lasting until after midnight. Greeley and Brown have set the prairies on fire. The people here are very enthusiastic for the Liberal ticket, everybody almost being for it.

WASHINGTON, July 10 .- The Baltimore nominations made a profound impression in official circles here, and are received by people generally with unusual enthusiasm. There is no official of note who attempts to underrate the Baltimore action, though Mr. Boutwell believes that Grant will be reflected by as large a majority as four years ago. There are more Greeley men ington to-night than any one a week ago would have dreamed of, and even in Executive departments there is, to-day, a boldness of utterance among minor officials in favor of Greeley that surprises the most in different of Grant's opponents. Already, since shortly after noon to-day, a number of large Greeley and Brown flags have been flung to the breeze across Pennsylvaniaave, and other leading business streets, and citizens are activety canvassing the chances of the campaign, and discussing the organization of Greeley Cinbs to l

ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION OF THE NEWS IN THE

The announcement that Horace Greeley had been nominated at Baltimore on the first ballot was received in this city, yesterday, with hearty enthusiasm. Congratulations which had been held in reserve were expressed by those who had discreetly waited for trustworthy intelligence. Men stopped on the corners of the streets to discuss the political situation, and satisfaction at the result of the action of the Democratic Convention was generally manifested. some persons expressed wonder that in one year such a revolution had taken place in political sentiment, and that Horsee Greeley had been declared the choice of the National Democracy on the first ballot. Some said that the action resulted from the fact that the Democracy have learned wisdom from past experience, and had appropriated the weapons of their opponents that they had heeded the instinct of the people rather than the preferences of the politicians. Many persons said that the expectations entertained at the beginning of a Convention were frequently doomed to final disappointment, and mentioned as an illustration the split of the Democracy at Charleston in 1860, which was entirely unforeseen at the opening of the session, and they had feared similar action would be the result in the present instance. When, therefore, the matter was | set at rest, yesterday, the incredulous breathed a sigh of relief as they grasped the hands of their compan-ions and gave vent to their expressions of satisfaction.

Not the least pleased portion of the community were the laboring classes, who regard Mr. Greeley as their friend and champion; and many of the hard-working mechanics expressed pleasure at the action of the Baltimore Convention, and proposed to their comrades three cheers for the "workingmen's friend," which were generally given with hearty good will. Ap old gentleman remarked that he had not seen such enthusiasm exhibited since the days of Andrew Jackson. Many friends of the Administration said that they feared that Gen. Grant would have a harder fight for reflection than he had ever known in the days of the Rebellion. The enthusiasm at the hotels and places of public amuse ment was unbounded.

IN CITY HALL SQUARE. As soon as the news that Greeley and Brown had been nominated was received, bunting was unfurled from every flagstaff on the City Hall. In the City-Hall Park was displayed a large banner bearing the inscription : "Tammany responds to the nomination of the National Convention at Baltimore," Directly in this banner was a four-pounder. from which 1001 salutes in honor of the nomination were fired in quick succession. Soon after this small gun began to make itself heard, two 10-pounders were put in position a little to the left of it, each of which added 50 reverberating roars to the cheers and shouts of the large assemblage which had gathered, in spite of the lazing sun, to express satisfaction at the action of the Convention. that the Cincinnati candidates would receive a second nomination at Baltimore, there was very little, if any, excitement in the vicinity of the newspaper offices. Of course, crowds gathered to read the announcements on the bulletin boards, and to add by way of comment, "We

As soon as The Times announced upon its bulletin board the action of the Convention, a man mounted the steps of that building and began to make a very incoherent harangue in favor of Gen. Grant. He had spoken to his own edification only a few moments, when posing three cheers for Gen. Grant. Three direful growns and a hiss were given, and were immediately fol-lowed by three more rousing cheers for Greeley and Brown; and the disgusted crator went away, disconso-lately muttering, "Why did n't they nominate Judge Chase!"

AT THE ENCHANGES.

The indorsement of the Cincinnati platform and candidates by the National Democratic Convention excited hearty enthusiasm throughout the down-town center of trade. At the Stock, Gold, Produce, and other Exchanges the dealers gathered in other Exchanges the dealers gathered in small groups, and in a calm, dispassionate manner discussed the results of the Convention, and the comparative chances of the theets now in the field. Few expressed any surprise, as nearly all had regarded the nominations as inevitable. Many considered the action of the Democratic Convention as a guarantee of success at the November election, and expressed the belief that a purer administration of government and an era of good feeling had been rendered possible. At the Custom-house and other resorts of Federal officials the news was received with less entinaisms. Small groups of dejected office-holders scanned with uneasiness the political horizon, catching glimpses, perhaps, of Civil The metahants called toward the control of the contr rm. bants called to mind the fact that Mr. Greeley

The Headquarters of the National and State Executive

Liberal Republican Committees were comparatively quiet yesterday. The officers in charge had gone to Baltimore, and those who visited the rooms to obtain news of the Convention were compelled to satisfy themselves with brief dispatches received by individuals. The first of these was to this effect: "Horace Greeley was nominated on the first ballot.' A second dispatch read: "Horace Greeley's nomination was made unanimous amid great enthusiasm." These words were received with great enthusiasm by those assembled about the telegraph office and at the head-quarters at the Glenham Hotel.

A few minutes afterward came the words: "On vote for Vice-President, Brown received 13; Stevenson of Kentacky, 6; Blauk, 13." Later in the afternoon the Baltimore office telegraphed, in response to an inquiry, these words: "Gov. Hofman of New-York said to have made the motion of unanimity."

The Democrats of the Fourteenth Ward met at their headquarters, No. 4 Spring-st, immediately after the receipt of news of Mr. Greeley's nomination, yesterday, and organized a Fourteenth Ward Democratic Greeley and Brown Campaign Club. The proceedings were hearty and spirited. James J. Slevin was chosen Presidents, Thomas Maguire and James Smith, Vice-Presidents, Frederick J. Byrne Treasurer, and Thomas W. Maxwell Secretary. A fund of $53 was subscribed to defray the incidental expenses of the campaign. Regular meetings will be held every Monday evening. A handsome banner will be raised in a few days, ou which occasion a notable gathering of the Democratic forces is expected.

An impromptu ratification meeting of the Tenth Ward M. T. Brennan Association was held, last night, at the Hall No. 101 Hesterst. Several addresses were delivered.

Rockets, Roman candles, and other fireworks were set off, last night, in front of several of the social club-rooms of the city, and congratulatory remarks were made.

An impromptu meeting of Democrats was held, last evening, at No. 100 Bond-st., and a First Ward East Side Democratic Club was thereupen formed. Several speeches were made, and resolutions were adopted indering the Baltimore nominations.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Twentich Assembly District Greeley and Brown Club was held at Hoadquarters, No. 839 Third-ave., last evening. In the absence of President H. D. Faulkoer, the chair was occupied by Vice-President Alfred Conger. Col. T. Hanley, Alfred Conger. Geo. A. Lambrecht, Dr. C. E. Simmons, Col. H. L. Cushing, and Geo. A. Van Brunt were appointed a Conference Committee to invite other organizations in the district to join the club, which has already 300 members.

The action of the Baltimere Convention was received with demonstrations of approval by the Liberal Republicans and Democrats of Brooklyn, and the news was discussed on the ferry-boats, in the cars around the newspaper bulletin boards, on the around the newspaper bunchin boards, of the streets, and in the public offices. A salute of 100 guns was fired from Fort Greene in the Western District and at the head of Ewen-st. in the Eastern District. Ar-rangements were made for a display of fireworks, but owing to the heavy fail of rain, this was postponed until

The General Liberal Republican Committee of Kings County met in Sawyer's rooms, in Fulton-st., last night. A proposition for a ratification meeting was referred to a committee. Strong speeches in favor of the Baltimore nominees were made by E. B. Lansing, C. W. Godard, T. N. Rooker, and Mr. Bliss. Resolutions were adopted recommending the formation of ward clubs, without party distinctions.

COMMENCEMENT SEASON.

AMHERST COLLEGE. COMMENCEMENT WEEK-THE BACCALAUREATE

SERMON-CLASS DAY-THE NECROLOGY OF THE YEAR-GENERAL EXERCISES. AMHERST, Mass., July 10 .- For the first time an years the Baccalaureate exercises of Commencement week have been ushered in by a cool and pleasant Sabbath. The students of the College formed a procession in front of the chapel, Sunday afternoon, marched to the College Hall, where President Stearns and a large audience awaited their arrival. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. Stowe of the Hartford Theological School. The President selected the theme of his discourse from Corinthians: "I speak as to wise men. Judge ye what I say." He endeavored to show the value and great need of the evangelical faith as the practical part of a liberal education, and urged the claims of the Christian religion upon the members of the graduating class. In his address to the class he spoke of their four years' connection with the College and the fact of their being the first class of the second half century of the College's existence. The germ of his instruction had been "the highest educati on and all for Christ," and he asked them to make this their watchword in life. make this their watchword in life.

"The Hitchcock Society of Inquiry" was addressed in the evening by the Rev. Washington Gladden of The New-York Independent. He spoke upon "The Church of the Future." Goethe compared the Church to the hut of fisherman, lined and covered with gold and silver, till the hut itself had become but a mere fraction of the present edifice; ranked its influence with music, hterature, and painting. But another poet, who lived 2,500 years ago, said, "And it shall come to pass in that day that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills, and all nations shall flow unto it." The next 2,500 years will determine whether Goethe or Isaiah had the grander and truer conception of the Church. Outines only were given by the Prophet. Let us fill in the outlines by inquiring, first, whether it will have a croed ! A creed is a statement of facts and the principles of religion. In the future the Church will be founded, as now, on eternal truth, and truth then, as now, will have its statements, and hence the Church will have its creed.

now, on eternal train, and the set the church will have its creed. Creeds will be modified. Doctrines have not yet attained fixedness of statement, but practical religion has been, and always will be, the same-faith and prayer alike in all times. The art of religion is old, but the sclence new. Side issues drop out, but essentials are the same. The Church of the future will believe in a personal God. Science cannot forgive sin. The mode of statement of God's existence will then be considered impossible—yet the preminence of Christ's personality will not be shaken when the Athanasian creed and its fellow are abolished. The creed of the future will not be laid down as the plank over which those seeking the kingdom of heaven must walk. The idea of Christ as the head of the church is the main thing. The polity of the Church will not bescause he does not believe in the divine origin of a man because he does not believe in the divine origin of a bishop or of a presbytery will be laughed to scora. The social life of the church will be greatly increased. There will be a note complete unity, and the rich and poor will be a note complete unity, and the rich and poor will be a note complete unity. Christianity of the social life of the church will be greatly increased. There will be a more complete unity, and the rich and poor will be placed on terms of equality. Christianity of the fashionable kind, celebrated in the columns of "Our Society," will be below par. No mean sectarianism; less said about union, but more done, the grand fundamental law of the Church wil be to "Do good to all men as ye have opportunity." It will save men wholly, not by mutilating but by completing their manhood. If we meddle with polities, we strive to right the wrongs, simply the wants, and comfort the sorrows of humanity. The address won golder opinions, and, while some regarded it a little too liberal for Amberst philosophy, all united in pronouncing it the brightest and sharpest address delivered before ine society for years.

Monday was given up entirely to prize speaking. In the afternoon a small audience assembled to hear six young gentlemen of the graduating class pronounce as many orations. This contest is similar in character to he be Forrest speaking at Yale, and the successful competitor receives a prize of $100. The speakers to-day were H. 8. Stevens of Chicago, Ill.; J. B. Clark, Minneapolis, Minn.; Ben., Bancroft, Prescott, Mass.; A. H. Thompson, Searsport, Me.; Harrison Bailey, Fitchburg, Mass.; H. B. Adams, Amherst, Mass. The prize was given to Bet. Bancroft. Class Day used to be celebrated four weeks lefore Commencement, and was the chief anniversary lay of the year, but the faculty have grown jealous of its influence, and now make it a mere appendage of Commencement the regular class exercises with the light and heavy apparatus of the hall. This department is jut to a practical use in this college, and exercise our days in the week is rendered compulsory. That it is of treat advantage, note the fact that there has been ut one death in college, not a man has been lost from this cause.

The singing of the class ode concluded the exercises it the hall, but the best of the enertainment was yet to ome. An adjournment to the College grove opened the omical side of the picture. The address to the faculty and undergraduates, in a humorous strain, and a fastwell ode from the Sophomore to the Graduating class concluded the literary entertainment. Then, forzing a circle, the class of '72 smoked their last pipe and sung their last song together, and, with three cheers for their class, separated.

Owing to the absence of ex-Gov. Bullock, the President of the College Association, the meeting was called to order by the Secretary, Prof. J. H. Seetye. The customary address was consequently omitted. Speeches were made by Henry Ward Beecher and other distinguished gentlemen. The triennial catalogue makes its appearance in an entirely new dress—Latin has lost its prestige and English has gained the mastery, an example that is worthy to be followed by sister institutions. The necrology of the year is as follows: Class of '24, Justin Marsh; '25, John Cambell; '27, Charles G. Clark; '28, John Farish; '36, Cupit Case Kellogg; '38, Charles Lord; '40, Harrison Otis Howland; '42, Jos. Gallop Cochrane; '55, Jos. Brown Reynolds; '29, Ed. The rarest treat of the entire week is expected this afternoon. Mr. Ralph Waldo Emerson of Concord addresses the Social Union, and both allumniand undergraduates are turning out en masse.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE.

THE INSTALLATION OF PRESIDENT CHAMBERLAIN. BRUNSWICK, Me., July 10.—Gen. Chamberlain was yesterday formally installed as President of Bow-dom College. The exercises began with prayer by Prof. Packard. Addresses of welcome were then made by Chief-Justice Appleton, in behalf of the Government of the College, and by A. F. Moulton, of Scarboro, of the incoming class, in behalf of the senior undergraduates. B. P. Benson, President of the Board of Overseers, delivered the keys to the new President with appropriate romarks. President Chamberlain replied, explaining the new system which has been adopted during the past year, and affirming his belief that this conformity to the demands of the times will greatly benefit the College and increase its usefulness. The ceremonies took place in the Congressational Church, which was well filled. Greeley and Brown Clubs organized a celebration which was a great success, notwithstanding a severe rain shour. The Central City Legion with flambeaus, the Greeley and Brown Club, the frish Liberal Club, and the designations from the various wards combined in a procession to the various wards combined in a procession to the coty headed by a band. An impromptu meeting was organized in Hanover-square, and was presided over by Robert McCarthy, sed. Speeches were made by 15-surs. McCarthy, Ludington, Bookstaver, Beach, and Titus. Every allusion to Mr. Greeley by the speakers was received with bursts of applicance. Not less than 3,000 persons were present. The Greeley sentiment is decidedly on the gain here. There is no Deprecentic defect.

The official bonds of Water Commissioner Whiting werefiled yesterday, Abraham B. Baylis and Robert M. Whiting, sr., becoming his sureties in $20,000. Deaths last week, 639, an increase over the previous weet of 231; 249 were from cholera infantum, 45 from sunstroke, 16 from small-pox, and 21 from Officer Denahue, who was brutally assaulted by the Battle-Row gang, on Sunday last, has become paralyzed, and will doubtless soon die. He has been un conscious since the tragedy occurred, and unable to make his stakement.

The Committee of Fifty claim to have proved that the Henpstead storage reservoir was projected two years beforeit was authorized; that the levels of the penda was willfully reduced for the purpose of impressing the public mind with the necessity of the work; that at least one member of the Common Council was "manip-ulated" toobtain a vote to override the Mayor's veto; that the contrast was awarded without legitimate competition; that the prices for the work were improper and excessive, and that the drainage of the supply basin was entirely unnecessary. For these reasons the Committee asks the Commissioners of City Works to annul the contract with Kingsley and Keeney at once, and to call for new bids.

JUDGE PRINDLE'S TRIAL.

THE CASE FOR THE PROSECUTION CLOSED-OPENING OF THE DEFENSE.

ALBANY, July 10 .- The Senate met at 9 . m., and held a short executive session, but no con firmations were made. The trial of Judge Prindle was then resumed. David C. Follett testified that Judge Prindle had in-ville in favor of the Central Valley Railroad, by which said Commissioners secured an undue advantage over and commissioners secured an under assuming over the contestants.

The prosecution here rested their case with the under-standing that they could call up other witnesses who had been sent for. The Senate then took a recess, and reassembled at $\epsilon$, m, when James W. Glover, of coun-sel for respondent, proceeded to open the case for deformed Charles P. Tarbell and others that he would appoint them Commissioners to bond the town of Smithphrey $2 in addition to the cost of stamp. (Humphrey had testified that he paid this money to Bey.)

E. H. Prindle testified that, in the matter of his employment as counsel for the Greene R liway Company, he did not, as testined by the witness Wulch, first reaks out a bill for $500, and afterward increase it to $1,600; he made but one bill, and that was tor $1,000; when Welch first came, he asked me for my bill; I told him I would make it out and give it to him after dioner; he then spoke of making Judge Prindle a present, and I told him I would speak to the Judge about his accepting it; I was boarding at Judge Prindle, and at dinner iold him what Welch said; there was nothing further said about the matter; nothing was said about my bill by the Judge, nor by me to nim. ludge, nor by me to him. The Senate then adjourned.

A CONDUCTOR'S FOLLY.

INQUEST ON THE SOUTH SIDE, L. I., RAILROAD VICTIMS.

Coroner Whitehill of Brooklyn held an inuest, yesterday, in the case of Mrs. Kate A. Row and ber son, Frank W. Row, killed by the South Side Railroad collision on July 4. R. A. Braley testified that he was a passenger on the train coming from Rockaway to Wilhamsburgh; they arrived at the terminus of the double track at about 5 p. m.; the train came to a stop on the double track; after running on the single track it came to a stop, and wit ness looked out of a window and saw a con among the railroad employés; saw some persons hurrying by as though something was wrong; a young man came running back toward the flagman and took the flag in his hand; another man was throw ing sand on the track; the flagman waved the flag; supposed that an attempt was making to back the train, but it was up grade and the train was heavily loaded; heard a whistle, but could not tell from which train it came; saw the train from Williamsburgh coming train it came; saw the train from Williamsburgh coming at such a speed that convinced him there must be a collision; witness jumped off the train and into a ravine to save himself from the steam in case of an explosion; the flagman was about 100 yards from the locemotive; he was standing atill; witness saw the collison, and thought that if Conductor Lyuch had sent a flagman around the curve there would have been no collison; if the flagman had been around on the center of the curve he could have been seen by the approaching train; thought the flagman did the best he could; think the other train could see him; witness's train was on the single track five minutes before the flag was shown; the collision occurred half a minute afterward; witness did not want to slarm the passengers; the engine of the train witness was on was reversed before the collision; could not say whether his train blew a whistle; his opinion was that the collision could have been prevented, if proper precaution had been taken by Conductor Lynch; the platforms of the cars were entirely smashed; saw the engineer sitting on his engine after the collision; did not see Conductor Lynch do anything to aid the sufferers or passengers; Mrs. Row was on the platform, and her son on the lower steps, when the collision took place; they could not have been injured had they remained in their seats; spoke to Lynch about the time when on the beach; he was perfectly sober then and when he collected the tickets; think that he should have sent out a flag, even if he had the right of way.

John J. Harvey of No. 300 Eighth-ave., New-York, testified that he was on the Rockaway train, and heard two whatles blown; an effort was made to back the trail. Witness corroborated the testified that he is a newat such a speed that convinced him there must be a

J. C. Kannahue of Jamaica testified that he is a newspaper reporter, and was on the train which left Williamsburgh at 5 p. m.; the conductor was John Rathbone; the engineer's name was Scott; heard a long whistle some distance off from the opposite train; was looking out of a window; a minute after the whistle blew, there was a sharp whistle, "down brakes," on witness's train; saw people running away from the other train; the engines then collided, with a slight shock; it was half a minute after the whistle before the collision took place; the engine was slowed; could see no flag; was not aware of the train being behind time; there was a special time-table for that day; never saw Rathbone under the influence of liquor. James B. Cubberly testified that he was a fireman on the Rockaway train; when it came to the end of doubletrack stopped four minutes and then the conductor said to the engineer, "We have waited here four minutes, our allotted time, and we have a right to proceed;" the engineer said "all right," and started the train off the double track on to the single one; the switch; an 'hen crued out "I think I hear them coming;" steam was then shut off and the brakes werewhistled down; could not back, and witness threw sand on the track under the wheels, but without effect; did not hear any whistle on the approaching train until half a minute before the collision; ours was an excusion train with five care.
